FOR THE GAZETTE.

Conversing a few days ago with an intelligent friend of mine upon the subject of that unaccountable composition of weakness, wickedness and bigotry, Ferdinand VII.—a young gentleman who happened to be present, with a furious indignation natural enough to the ardor of youth, the purity of one unpractised in the ways of man, and the impetuosity of inexperience, burst forth in an explosion of the most foul and bitter invective, and the most passionate imprecations of the wrath of heaven upon the head of that monster, as he was pleased to denominate that unfortunate sovereign of an enslaved and degraded people.

Having patiently heard the young man to the end of his volley of abuse, my friend took occasion to animadvert with great force, and yet great mildness upon the error of condemning by wholesale, in the very worst terms which language can afford, the motives of any one, without entirely understanding them—acknowledging at the same time that the conduct of Ferdinand was despicable and abominable, but denying in the most positive manner that it followed as a necessary consequence that his motives were incapable of palliation to his own mind, or that by early distortions of the judgment, pernicious prejudices, and vitiated habits of reasoning, he might not have been led to conclude that the very acts which drew upon him the censure and execration of the world, were, in some way or other, even meritorious.

My friend supported his position by a multitude of instances in the history of the human race, of the most mad and mischievous tenets and the most atrocious and sanguinary acts being established as matter of national institution, public law, and religious ordinance—the fruits not so much of human vice as of human infirmity. And he very justly observed that the various superstitions of the east, and particularly the laws and customs of that mildest race of the children of Adam, the Gentiles, were full of them.—And indeed, on the grounds of religious imposture, what is there which the subtlety of a dextrous unprincipled logician may not impress upon a weak man—particularly if it be made to coincide with that man's uniform past prejudices and present convenience—as irresistibly as if it were warranted by proofs of holy writ? Even our own divine religion has often been wrested by the sophistry of cunning, bad men, to the sanction of evil, and profanely tortured into a sanction of the most barbarous crimes. The history of the Romish inquisition is as thickly set, as is the firmament with stars, with instances of this gross kind of perversion.

I have often thought that it was impossible for Ferdinand to bend his conscience to such abominable transgressions of the ordinary laws of justice, humanity and gratitude if he were not reconciled to them by the infernal logic alluded to.

In ANQUETIL's memoirs of the Court of France, an anecdote is related of that splendid character, Louis IV., which comes home close to this point, and will serve to throw a light upon that system under which so many atrocious enormities have been perpetrated by men, in other respects, not remarkably deficient in the feelings of humanity, the principles of morality, or the tender charities so forcibly enjoined in every chapter of our glorious christian code.

In the distress of France, under the adverse fortune experienced by Louis, aurnamed the great, towards the close of his reign, a death was added to the oppressive taxes under which the people groaned, and the edict for it was framed with pains and penalties against such delinquents as should be brought to conviction, and presented to the king. Accustomed as his majesty was to the imposition of the most enormous taxes, he could not help (for he was naturally benevolent) being greatly shocked at this—his uneasiness was even visibly marked in his countenance. His domestic observed it; and Mareschal, his surgeon, ventured to mention to him that he had observed a degree of melancholy hang about him for several days, and that he was afraid for his majesty's health. Louis at once acknowledged to him that he was in great uneasiness. Within eight or ten days, however, he began a little to recover his tranquillity sent for Mareschal, and taking him apart told him, 'Now that I feel myself at ease, I will tell you the cause of my anxiety, and by what means I have got rid of it.' He then informed him that the urgent necessity of his affairs having compelled him to impose new taxes, his compassion for his subjects, and his dislike to trespass on their property, had greatly distressed him on the occasion. 'At last,' added he, 'I opened my mind to Father TELLIER. He required some days to think of the matter. He has now brought me a consultation of the subtlest doctors of the Sorbonne, who all agree that the whole property of my subjects is mine personally; and that when I take it from them, I take nothing but what is my own. This decision has restored the ease of my mind which I had lost.'

Luckily for Mareschal, says the historian, the king immediately left him without noticing his astonishment, which would in all probability have given great offence to the monarch.

What is the subject upon which Shakespeare has not said something better than all other writers? How home to this misfortune of kings does he speak in the following lines:

'It is the curse of kings to be attended By slaves, who take their humour for a warrant To break into the bloody house of life; And on the winking of authority, To understand a law; to know the meaning Of dangerous majesty, when, perchance, it frowns More upon humour than advised respect. King John, act 4, scene 2.

Extract of a letter to a gentleman in Baltimore, dated Erie Hill, Northampton, May 22, 1818.

Dear Sir—I am informed by express, that the factories of the Steam Company of Princess Anne, Md. are reduced to ashes. That stupendous structure, the effect of so much trial and anxious supervision, is nothing now but smoking ruins, over and above the towering buildings, a vast amount of furniture and stock, in various stages of preparation, have become a prey to the devouring element. The loss exceeds sixty thousand dollars, and not a cent insured.

Extract of a letter received in Charleston, dated Havana, 23d May, 1818.

But few arrivals have taken place, as you will perceive by the papers. Our market for rice is rather depressed for the moment, though a tolerably large sale took place to day for eight dollars: this however, will not pay cost and charges. Sweet oil is very scarce—our last supplies came from your city, and I believe have done well.

The public are cautioned, says the Cape Fear Recorder, against spurious two dollar bills, on the State Bank of North Carolina. They are made payable at the Principal Bank to R. Smith. The plate is badly executed, and the signatures evidently engraved, the paper is spongy, the date the third of May, with the figures 181, and there is every presumption that the deficient figure was purposely excluded to prevent detection.

It is stated that admiral Valdes is appointed by the king of Spain to the command of the expedition fitting out against South America. We have some reason to doubt this report. Valdes commanded a Spanish 74, at the battle of Trafalgar, and with one or two vessels escaped and got safe into Cadiz. During the revolution, he took an active part in the establishment of the Spanish cortes and constitution, and was appointed governor of Cadiz. So firm was his attachment to the constitution, that even after the arrival of Ferdinand in Spain, and the appointment of Villavicencio as his successor, he refused to violate his oath of fidelity to that constitution. He was subsequently tried and condemned to ten years imprisonment in the castle of Alcañt. He is a brave and experienced officer, and if he has made his peace with the king, his attachment to the colonies seems to throw a doubt upon his having received any important command against them. Valdes was an intimate friend of Atiquiller, Quintana and Rosas, together with the deputies of South America in the cortes, all men of talents, and sincerely attached to the independence of that country. [Nat. Adv.

CUVIER'S ACCOUNT OF THE WORLD.

Mr. Cuvier states one very remarkable fact, viz. that no human remains have been hitherto discovered among the extraneous fossils; from which he infers that the population of the world is but of recent date, and that its present surface is not of very ancient formation. He affords many proofs from traditions of a great catastrophe, and a subsequent renewal of human society. Finally, he is of opinion, that if there is any circumstance well established in geology, it is, that the crust of our globe has been subjected to a great and sudden revolution, the epoch of which cannot be dated much farther back than five or six thousand years ago; that this revolution had buried all the countries which were before inhabited by men and by other animals that are now best known.

We republish from the Augusta Chronicle, the following extract of a letter from major general Jackson, to brigadier general Glascock. It evinces in plain and unequivocal terms, the opinion of general Jackson on the outrage against the Chehaw village and its friendly and defenceless inhabitants. The trial which the general has ordered will, we presume, develop the circumstances, and unfold all the facts connected with an affair which seems greatly and properly to have excited the sensibility of our citizens.—Justice we hope will be done on the occasion—nothing less ought to be expected—and nothing more ought to be required, by those who have felt and expressed the most indignation on the occasion.

As the general expects to occupy Pensacola as an American garrison, this may perhaps be a prelude to the establishment of his headquarters at Augustus.

[Augusta Herald.

Camp, on the line of march, sixteen miles in advance of fort Gadsden, May 7.

I cannot adequately express my feelings on the outrageous and inhuman attack of captain Wright and party, on the superannuated men and women of the friendly Chehaw village, which you recite: It will be a stigma on the American nation, unless the general government use their endeavors to bring the perpetrators to justice. I have ordered Wright to be arrested, and he shall be tried by a military court. I have written the governor of Georgia on the subject, expressing my astonishment at his unwarrantable interference with my duties. I congratulate you on the safe march of your brigade to fort Early, with a hope that the brave Georgians under your command, who have encountered the dangers, fatigues and privations of a long march in an unfriendly country, may be speedily restored in health, to their families and homes.

I am now on my march to Pensacola, which place I shall have probably to occupy with an American garrison.

ASYLUM FOR THE DEAF AND DUMB.

We have just received a pamphlet from a friend in Hartford, containing a report of the institution erected at that place for the education of the deaf and dumb, and which we cannot refrain from presenting to our readers entire, as one of the most interesting we ever read. Of all the societies that have sprung up for bettering the condition of mankind, no one presents such an aspect of pure unmixed benevolence, as this before us, or more forcibly appeals for assistance and encouragement to the breast of the humane.—The Connecticut Asylum is an honor to the city of Hartford, which the United States might envy.

N. F. Eca. Post.

To the patrons and friends of the Connecticut Asylum, for the education and instruction of deaf and dumb persons, the directors respectfully present the following

REPORT

The history of its past year furnishes a new occasion of gratitude to Almighty God, to all who feel interested in the welfare of the Asylum. During this period, the pupils have enjoyed an unusual degree of health, and we again witness their return, delighted at the prospect which the coming year affords them of domestic enjoyment with each other, and of further improvement in intellectual and religious knowledge. Many thanks are due to the "author of every good and perfect gift," for the various blessings which he has scattered in the paths of those his unfortunate fellow beings—especially for the preservation of the life and health of their worthy companion in misfortune, to whose faith and successful labors, under God, they and their friends owe so much; for the remarkable deference and obedience which they generally exhibited towards those who have had the care of them; for the faithful industry with which they have pursued their studies; and for the harmony and good will which have marked their happy intercourse with each other—an intercourse, too, which has contributed to their improvement in the acquisition of language, by affording them frequent opportunities of conversation with their instructors and each other. They have secured, also, the universal affection and esteem of their acquaintances in the town in which they reside. And this deserved praise is bestowed upon them, not to excite their vanity, but for the better purpose of encouraging them in the way of well doing; of affording consolation to their friends; and, may we add, of leading all who feel interested in their happiness, to think how much gratitude is due to that Saviour, by whose continual intercession so many comforts have descended from the source of all good, to soothe and to cheer them.

Thus far the labors of the instructors have been principally directed to the improvement of the pupils in written language. This is the only avenue to the various departments of knowledge which books contain, and which must, forever, be inaccessible to the deaf and dumb, until they become familiar with the powers and use of letters in their various forms and combinations. This, also, is necessary even for the purposes of their common intercourse with mankind, most of whom know nothing of the manner in which thoughts can so easily and distinctly be expressed by signs and gestures.

Some simple lessons, however, have been given the pupils in astronomy and geography; and their views of the world which they inhabit have been much enlarged by occasional descriptions of its mighty and diversified population, with its varieties of climate, manners, customs and government. Still correct orthography, the meaning of words, and their combination into phrases and sentences, have been the objects of instruction to which the attention of the teachers has been, and must, for some considerable time to come, yet be, principally directed. The magnitude of their task, in this respect will doubtless be duly appreciated by all reflecting minds, when it is considered how many years of patient labor must be bestowed even upon those youth who are in possession of all their faculties, before they are able to read and write their mother tongue correctly; possessing too, as they do, a most invaluable privilege of which the deaf and dumb are deprived—the constant opportunity of learning language by their daily intercourse with mankind.

How far the use of written language, as a medium for the communications of thought, has been successfully taught in the asylum during the past year, may be perhaps estimated from a few specimens of the compositions of some of the most advanced pupils, entirely original with regard to thought, style, choice of words, and orthography, which are annexed to this report.

Of the general success, too, which has crowned the labors of the instructors, and the very faithful and assiduous application of the pupils, the directors deem it but justice to say, that it has removed the doubts of many incredulous, and the forebodings of many fearful persons; that it has settled the question of the practicability of affording ample, useful instruction in the various departments of intellectual and religious knowledge to the intellectual deaf and dumb; that it has gained the decided approbation of those who have visited the school; and that, so far as the information of the directors has extended, it has equalled the most sanguine expectations of the parents and friends of the pupils.

Much time and patient labor, however, will yet be necessary to place this infant establishment upon such a basis that it can enjoy all the facilities of improvement which a long course of experience has furnished to similar institutions in Europe. The system of instruction, in its general outlines, is like that so successfully pursued in the institution in Paris. It sprang from the wonderful genius of the Abbe de l'Epée. His successor is the venerable Abbe Sicard, who still, in the decline of life, enjoys all the freshness and energy of youth; and like some stately tree of the forest, extending its arms, as if for the support and protection of the plants which fondly encircle its trunk, spreads his parental care over the unfortunate children to whose happiness his talents and life have been devoted. This father of the deaf and dumb is now exhibiting, even to this new world, the most satisfactory proof of the admirable perfection to which he has carried the system of his predecessor, in the attainments of his interesting and worthy pupil.—This system, however, so matured in all its philosophical principles, and so sure of efficacy in its practical result, is yet, in some respects, to be accommodated to the peculiar structure and idioms of our own language. The regular course of lessons in the asylum is yet to be reduced to method, and its instructors, with the exception of Mr. Clerc, to whom our country will ever be indebted for the possession of his curious and ingenious art, are yet, under his skill and guidance, to be trained to the complete mastery of the science and practice of their profession.

The instructors have felt it to be their duty to exert themselves to convey useful religious knowledge to their pupils, and there is reason to believe that their exertions have not been without success. In a regular series of written lectures, always explained and illustrated by signs the principal events recorded in the sacred volume, with some of its essential doctrines, have been communicated to the most attentive group of expectant pupils, with delight, which perhaps the eye ever witnessed. To their astonished view has been opened the sublime idea of the infinite and Eternal God, the Creator and Sustainer of all things, concerning whose existence and character some of these imprisoned minds seemed to have had scarcely any conception, while those of mature age, who had been led by the instruction of their friends to the contemplation of some Being in the heavens, evidently had formed of him the most crude, and, in some instances, the most absurd notions. A knowledge, also, of the soul's immortality, of a future state of retribution, and of the manner in which their eternal existence may be rendered happy, has been, in part at least, unfolded to them. They have been taught, too, how much love they owe to their heavenly Father; how they ought, by their own expressive language of signs; to pray to Him; and how they are bound to imitate the example of Christ in the habitual exercise of charity and good-will towards all their fellow men. The more advanced pupils have understood these truths to a very considerable extent, and all have made such progress in the acquisition of religious knowledge, as to sanction the belief, that nothing but persevering efforts will be necessary for the complete development to their minds of those truths, the understanding and belief of which, under the blessing of God, will conduce to their own present and future happiness, and fit them for usefulness in the world. It is a fact, too, which ought to encourage the hopes, and animate the prayers of all the friends of the asylum, that the knowledge already imparted to the pupils has had a very happy influence upon them, while the eagerness with which they receive instruction, and the interest with which they often converse about it, with their teachers, and among themselves, afford a truly animating prospect.

Since the commencement of the asylum, its expenses have been more considerable than the public seem generally to be aware of. It was at first necessary, that the principal should visit Europe; he brought back with him a most valuable professor of the art of teaching the deaf and dumb; they spent several months in travelling through some parts of our country to awaken public attention and procure public bounty; the school-room has needed stationary, and slates of a very large size for each pupil, besides smaller slates and other furniture; the dwelling-house has been provided with suitable accommodations; and, now, from the increase of pupils, (the number of which has risen from twenty-one, whose names appeared in the last report to forty-one) it has become necessary to procure new school rooms and two new instructors, making in all five teachers.

The domestic happiness, too, of so numerous a family; its religious order; its good manners and morals; with its thousand nameless wants, demand the care of those who will supply the place of father and mother. And the directors feel a peculiar pleasure in making it known to the friends of the asylum, that its superintendence is entrusted to the Rev. Samuel Whittlesey and his lady, in whose parental watchfulness and kindness they place the most entire confidence, trusting, that under their fostering care the pupils of this asylum will grow up to increased respectability and usefulness.

All this machinery cannot move without considerable expense, and the fact is, that each pupil has been charged a less annual sum for board, washing and tuition than these articles cost the asylum. Applications for admission are constantly received, and it will be impossible for the institution to enlarge the sphere of its usefulness without such aid, either from public or private munificence, as will enable it to provide instructors, erect buildings, and purchase grounds for the improvement and accommodation of its increasing numbers. The present state of the funds of the asylum will be seen by referring to the treasurer's account connected with this report.

For the supply of the future wants of the asylum, the directors would first look to Almighty God, who has the hearts of all men in his hands, trusting that he will not forsake this vine, which they believe his own right hand has planted, but so animate the prayers and excite the benevolence of all who love to imitate the example of his compassionate Son our Saviour, that the future prosperity of this infant establishment may add new lustre to the trophies which now so widely mark the successful progress of the Redeemer's kingdom in the earth. To him be this asylum consecrated; within its walls may His name be precious; and from His fulness may it derive all its temporal and spiritual blessings.

In the name of the directors,

and obtained a horse and gig on hire; as he said, to go to Ellicott's Mills, and return in the afternoon of the same day; and as he has not yet returned, there is strong reason to believe that his intention is to swindle me out of my property. He is about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, apparently about 25 or 30 years of age, of genteel appearance, and well calculated to deceive.
The horse is a grey, about 15 hands high, 9 or 10 years old, has a switch tail, a speck on the right eye, and moves swiftly. The gig has a green body, carriage and wheels black, the lining of blue cloth, red stuff top, linings, plated double—outside joints.
I will give the above reward for the recovery of the horse and gig, and the detection of the scoundrel, or 50 dollars for the horse and gig only, and all reasonable expense, if delivered to me, No. 26, North Liberty street, Baltimore.

One of these farms contains 600 acres, one half, at least, of which, is in wood—the other contains 450 acres, upwards of one-third of which is in wood—on the latter are a commodious overseer's house, a new barn, stables, corn houses, and negro quarters, and about 20 acres of well improved timothy meadow. The woodland on both of these farms is covered with a fine growth of red oak and hickory, and the soil, what is denominated first rate tobacco land—the whole of the cleared land is under good enclosures, has had the advantage of a clover hay, and has afforded as strong evidences of its adaptation to the Plaister of Paris, as any land in the state. No land is better watered; both farms being bounded by Broad Run, and having (besides other springs) a never failing stream mill run passing through their centre.

100 Dollars Reward.
RAN away from the subscriber's farm, near Piscataway, Md. on or about the 1st day of March 1813 a dark mulatto man named Nick, five feet ten or eleven inches high, slender made, a little deaf, speaks a little through his nose, has been in the habit of wearing rings in his ears, but may have taken them out to avoid discovery. Said negro Nick has a wife on Mr. Thomas A. Digges's land, near Fort Washington, and is probably harbored in that neighborhood. I will give the above reward of Thirty Dollars, if taken out of the State of Maryland, and Twenty if taken in the State, more than ten miles from home—it within ten miles of home, Ten Dollars.

LELAND,
about 18 years of age, 5 feet 4 or 5 inches high, black complexion—had on when he went away an "osnaburg shirt and trousers and blue cloth coat split down the back." It is supposed he intends making for Baltimore or some of the northern cities as he has money with him. A reward of ten dollars will be paid for apprehending him in the District of Columbia, or the above reward if taken out of the District and confined so that he may be had again, and reasonable charges paid if brought home.

Absconded.
ON the night of the 16th inst. my negro man JOHN, or JOHN ALLEN, (as he calls himself)—he is well known, having lived with me for several years, and has travelled a good deal with me. He is a very plausible fellow, about 30 years of age, slender made, and about 5 feet 5 inches high, rather of a yellow complexion, but the complete negro mouth and nose—has a small scar on one of his cheeks—has lately had a sore on his right leg, directly on the shin bone, which leg has the appearance of being much scored at a former period by disease or the small pox. His hat was made and stamped by Rogers of Baltimore. A reward of 10 dollars will be given if taken in the town or county of Alexandria, 20 if in the county of Washington or Fairfax, 50 if in Baltimore or state of Maryland, and 100 if in Philadelphia or the state of Pennsylvania, and in like proportion if at any other places, with all reasonable charges for bringing him here and securing him in jail.

James Kennedy & Son,
RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from
LEE'S MEDICINE STORE,
No. 46, Maiden Lane, New-York a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:
Hamilton's Worm destroying Lozenges.
Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.
This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humors and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.
Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.
Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terebr or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucubaria or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.
Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits; and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and looseness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance; and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.
Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.
A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting, and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.
Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.
The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended
HAHN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS
THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.
The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced; who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.
Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.
It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases extremely desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.
The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance; they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.
They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.
